FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

VOLUMINANT AWARDED GSA SCHEDULE TRAINING-RELATED CONTRACT

WASHINGTON – Voluminant, an Arlington, Virginia-based company that helps organizations improve performance through strategy, technology and business process consulting, and by designing custom interactive training programs, has been awarded a U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) schedule contract.

The contract enables Voluminant to supply federal government agencies with custom training program course development services in an expedited manner and at a negotiated rate.

“This latest contract award provides a powerful combination of service offerings when combined with our GSA schedule contract for video production services,” said Christopher Stammer, CEO of Voluminant. “This will enable Voluminant to develop training programs buoyed by interactive training videos for our federal customers.”

Voluminant’s GSA schedule contract number is GS-02F-0153T. The contract includes all services to custom-develop a goal-oriented training course – from brainstorming and program design to initial training program delivery and final packaging.

“This contract enables Voluminant to produce custom training programs to help our federal customers’ trainees reach focused learning objectives by taking the engaging, creative training approach for which Voluminant is known.”

Voluminant has extensive experience designing and developing hard-hitting interactive training programs for a host of industry-leading clients including the U.S. Department of State, the Clyde’s Restaurant Group, and U.S. Foodservice.

About Voluminant

Voluminant helps companies leverage their resources to reduce operating costs and improve products, service or safety. Voluminant’s training practice is interactive multimedia driven, making use of virtual story-based learning experiences, gaming and simulations.
